This topographic map illustrates the terrain of the Jerusalem region. The central feature is the Jordan Rift Valley, shown as a deep, narrow depression running north-south. The valley floor is shaded in a light blue-grey, indicating its lower elevation. The surrounding highlands are depicted with a color gradient from green to yellow and orange, representing increasing elevation. The terrain is rugged, with numerous ridges and valleys. Two specific locations are marked with black dots and labeled: Jerusalem is located on the western slope of the ridge to the west of the rift valley, and Bethlehem is situated further south and west, also on a western slope. The Mediterranean Sea is visible on the far left edge of the map, and the Dead Sea is partially visible at the bottom center. The overall orientation is vertical, with north at the top.
